Notice and Declaration

- China Airlines and Mandarin Airlines only accept service dogs on international operating flights, and this form is applicable to all itinerary except flights to and from United States.
- A service dog is individually trained to do work or perform tasks for the benefit of a qualified individual with visual, hearing, or physical disability, and it must be trained to behave properly in public and follow instructions. Any other dogs which not meeting the qualification of service dog must travel as a pet and need to be transported as checked baggage with additional charge.
- Passengers are obliged to meet the relevant animal transit and entry requirements and obtain all the necessary documents for service dogs.
- The service dog must be vaccinated from rabies, has not been exposed to rabies, and is free of pests and diseases that would endanger people or public health.
- The service dog must be harnessed, leashed, or tethered or stayed in the kennel at all times, and should be able to fit on the lap or within the foot space of the passenger on the aircraft, otherwise the passenger may be required to purchase an additional seat. If disruptive behavior of the service dog is observed at any point during the journey and isn't corrected or controlled, in the reasonable exercise of our discretion, China Airlines and Mandarin Airlines reserve the right to refuse carriage or to claim for any loss and damage caused by the service dog.
- For safety reasons, passengers travelling with service dogs are not allowed to seat in the exit row.
- To avoid improper sale of animals, China Airlines and Mandarin Airlines would only accept the applications for the same dog under the same passenger's booking record.
- The undersigned agrees to the privacy protection policy of China Airlines and Mandarin Airlines. The personal data provided in this form may only be used by China Airlines and Mandarin Airlines to process the application of service dog. China Airlines and Mandarin Airlines will not disclose your personal information to third parties unrelated to this application. Your personal data would be retained for the purpose of information collection, business related requirements and legal affairs. When destroying customer data, commercially reasonable and technically feasible measures will be taken in accordance with relevant laws to ensure that the personal data cannot be restored or reproduced.
